ABSTRACT

This report describes the background of the Association of Research Libraries Microform Project and summarizes results of the survey from which the database of the project's clearinghouse on the bibliographic control of microforms has been constructed. The Microform Project was established in 1981 to assist libraries, microform publishers, and the bibliographic utilities in their efforts to achieve bibliographic access to titles in microform sets. The primary tool in providing this assistance is a Microform Cataloging Clearinghouse, the main purposes of which are to facilitate the cataloging of titles in microform sets and prevent duplication of effort. The clearinghouse database is based on the results of a survey sent to participants in the four major bibliographic utilities as well as the few major libraries that do not participate in them. The 535 useful survey returns which were received show that a large number of libraries catalog titles in microform sets and that most of them create machine-readable records for at least some of the sets they catalog. A copy of the survey questionnaire and additional information on the survey and the clearinghouse are appended. (DMC)

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

Introduction

The Association of Research Libraries Microform Project has recently established a clearinghouse on the bibliographic control of microforms. Libraries that are now cataloging microform collections of books and serials and libraries that are planning new microform cataloging projects should contact the Project office for details regarding cataloging records that may already be available for titles in the microform sets which concern them.

Libraries may use clearinghouse data to locate records on the bibliographic utilities or they may use the data to acquire tapes of machine-readable cataloging from other libraries for loading into in-house systems. Information is also available on records that have been coded for set processing and that can thus be automatically updated to include local library identification and local call numbers for acquisition in collated sets of cards or pre-processed tapes. Other information in the clearinghouse data base includes what sets are held and whether local finding tools have been prepared for them as well as details regarding cataloging that has been given titles contained in the sets. In all, the data base contains information given by 535 responding libraries in up to 68 separate categories.

In addition to helping libraries to catalog titles in microform sets and to acquire automatically-profiled cataloging records for sets, this information may be used to create cooperative cataloging projects, prevent duplicated effort, compile state-wide or regional union lists of microform holdings, and draft microform cataloging grant applications.

The clearinghouse is a major program of the Microform Project. This report describes the background of the project and summarizes results of the survey from which the clearinghouse data base has been constructed.

Background

Commercial and nonprofit organizations have been re-publishing collections of books and serials in microfilm, microfiche, and other microformats for nearly half a century. Both publication and acquisition of these microform sets increased dramatically in the 1960s and early 1970s, and more recently, while acquisition rates of books and serials in hardcopy format leveled off or declined, acquisition rates of microform publications remained at high levels. As a result, microform unit holdings in many libraries currently equal or exceed volume counts of hardcopy books and serials. Although there are no statistics giving truly comparable holdings data -- such as numbers of titles or pages of both hardcopy and microform publications -- it is plain nonetheless that microform sets now constitute a very significant portion of overall library resources.

Despite this prominence, microform sets are notoriously under-used. Recent improvements in the design and operation of microform reading rooms have been useful, but not in themselves sufficient to overcome the problem. Attempts to increase usage by means of annotated bibliographies, checklists, and guides have only partly improved matters, and indexes and abstracting services (which have been useful in providing access to individual serials and government publications in microform) have proven both unaffordable and impractical when applied to microform sets.

Full, title-by-title cataloging of the works contained in these sets has the potential for increasing usage dramatically. Nonetheless, the task of providing catalog records for each title in all the sets of every library collection has, until recently, seemed impossibly difficult. The Library of Congress has not (until very recently) been a source for microform cataloging, and the catalog card sets provided by most microform publishers and some enterprising libraries have been difficult to adapt for local use.

The evolution of on-line shared cataloging within large bibliographic utilities created an opportunity for overcoming this impasse. Such cataloging provides the means for dividing the work load and sharing the work product so that microforms may be given full cataloging in accordance with widely-accepted standards in an extremely efficient and cost-effective manner.

Recognizing this fact, in 1976-78 R. Grey Cole chaired a subcommittee of the Resources Section Micropublishing Committee (American Library Association, Resources and Technical Services Division) which developed a program for using cataloging networks to achieve bibliographic control of microforms. Drawing on the advice of representatives from libraries, microform publishers, grant-making organizations, and the Library of Congress, the subcommittee produced a strategy that led, in 1979, to the creation of an ARL planning study which led in turn to the establishment of the ARL Microform Project.

The project got underway in August 1981 with grants from the Council on Library Resources and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Recently the Mellon Foundation made ARL a further grant to operate the microform cataloging clearinghouse on a part-time basis through September 1984.

Objectives of the ARL Microform Project

The project aims to assist libraries and microform publishers in their creation of machine-readable cataloging records for the many thousands of titles in microform sets that have heretofore either not been cataloged or inadequately cataloged. As major tools in accomplishing this task, the project has been pursuing the establishment of set-processing (or profile-matching) mechanisms whereby records are coded to permit their being accessed en masse with automatic addition of local data. Once coded for set processing, machine-readable records for a given set can be manipulated as a separate file. Libraries can request the bibliographic utility that holds the records to process them as a unit, adding local identifying information and call numbers in a single machine operation and supplying cards and/or tapes as needed. Unit costs for this service should be far less than the cost for use of machine-readable cataloging on a title-by-title basis.

In addition to the creation of set processing mechanisms, the goals of the project include the following: (a) providing information to libraries on machine-readable records that are available for them to use in copy cataloging, (b) assisting libraries to establish cooperative projects to catalog sets for which individual library cataloging is impractical, (c) pursuit of arrangements among the bibliographic utilities for sharing microform cataloging records, (d) encouraging the production of high-quality machine-readable records by microform publishers, (e) fostering improved bibliographic tools for preservation microfilming, and (f) working to achieve consensus on cataloging standards for microform cataloging.

Progress Toward Achieving the Objectives

The basic goals of the project have been achieved or are well on the way to accomplishment. A surprising number of major microform cataloging projects are underway in U.S. and Canadian libraries. For example, 41 of the 85 sets that were given highest-priority for cataloging in the Microform Project survey are already fully cataloged in machine-readable form or are in the process of becoming fully cataloged on either the Online Computer Library Center (OCLC) network or the Research Libraries Information Network (RLIN). This cataloging does not entirely result from the work of the project, of course, but much of it has come about as a result of the Coordinator's work and of the publicity surrounding the investigations that preceded the project.

OCLC has established a set-processing system and should soon announce its access and pricing policies. Information regarding the system, which is called "Major Microforms," is available from OCLC's Eileen Henthorne. Sets cataloged under Higher Education Act Title II-C grants by the University of Utah and Indiana University, as well as a set being cooperatively cataloged, have been or are being coded for set processing. Further coding for set-processing is planned both for new cataloging and for cataloging that has already been entered into OCLC.

Under the auspices of the Microform Cataloging Task Force of OCLC's Research Libraries Advisory Committee (RLAC), a joint cooperative project is underway for cataloging the Research Publications microform set entitled American Fiction. This is the set for which cataloging records are being coded for set processing as noted above. Further joint cataloging projects are being planned by the Task Force and its chair, W. David Laird, Director of the University of Arizona Library.

The Coordinator has worked closely with the RLAC cooperative group, with the libraries that have been cataloging microform sets under HEA Title II-C grants, with the Library of Congress, and with other libraries that are establishing new microform cataloging programs.

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

OCLC and the Research Libraries Group (RLG) have agreed to exchange computer tapes for microform cataloging that has been done using Title II-C grants. (Stanford University, an RLG member, has also received II-C microform cataloging grants.)

Although the publication of new microform sets seems to have leveled off or declined, and the microform publishing industry appears to be in a period of consolidation, one major publisher, University Microfilms International (UMI), continues to produce a high volume of machine-readable records using OCLC and is expected to negotiate set-processing arrangements with OCLC. Another major publisher, Research Publications (RP), is expected to begin OCLC cataloging in the near future. Both UMI and RP are providing support to libraries that are cataloging sets they have already published. Other publishers have agreed to take similar roles with respect to the sets they have published.

The Coordinator has been working closely with the Library of Congress in its planning for the integration of the National Register of Microform Masters and Newspapers in Microfilm into the new NUC publishing program. This and other preservation-related work has been expanded within the NEH-funded preservation microfilming component of the Microform Project (begun in the fall of 1982 and continuing on a half-time basis until the fall of 1984).

Basic problems concerning cataloging standards were effectively solved when the Library of Congress issued its interpretation of AACR 2 with respect to microforms. The Coordinator has worked with LC and with ALA's Interdivisional Committee on Representation in Machine-Readable Form of Bibliographic Information (MARBI) in revising and re-defining the MARC 007 Physical Description Fixed Field for microforms and he continues to work with standards-making bodies, such as the PH5 and Z39 committees of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), concerning standards on microform matters.

Information Clearinghouse

In 1982, the ARL Microform Project conducted a survey to obtain detailed information regarding the bibliographic control of microform sets that are held by U.S. and Canadian libraries. Survey results have been used to establish a computerized clearinghouse having three components: (1) information on overall library policies relating to the cataloging of titles in microform sets, (2) information on individual library holdings of specific sets and on the bibliographic control given to them, and (3) information on individual library priorities for cataloging specific sets and interest in cooperative projects to catalog them.

Libraries and microform publishers that are currently cataloging titles in microform sets or that are planning to start new cataloging programs may call or write the project office for reports on sets that concern them. These reports show whether or not cataloging has already been given to a specific set, and, if so, give such details as the proportion of the set that has been cataloged, the main source and level of cataloging, and the cataloging code observed. Where titles have been provided with machine-readable cataloging, they show the proportion cataloged, whether cataloging continues, whether tapes are held locally, and into which data bases records have been entered. In addition, reports provide information on machine-readable cataloging that has been given sets; they show the proportion of each set that has been given machine-readable cataloging, whether creation of machine-readable records continues, and whether tapes are held locally. They also show the data bases into which records have been entered and whether the records have been tagged for set processing.

Libraries can use this information to catalog titles in microform sets that they hold or are in the process of acquiring. Records that have been coded for set processing will soon be available from OCLC in card or tape form. Records that have not been coded for set processing may be used as sources for cataloging title-by-title on the utilities on which they are found. Libraries that have on-line catalogs and/or in-house data processing capability may use the clearinghouse to locate and acquire cataloging tapes that are held by other libraries.

Other clearinghouse functions include the following: (1) providing data useful in putting together groups for cooperative cataloging projects, such as the RLAC cooperative project to catalog the American Fiction microfilm set; (2) preventing duplication of effort; (3) supporting applications for cataloging grants, for example under the HEA Title II-C program; (4) setting priorities for cataloging; (5) providing a link between publishers and libraries in matters concerning microform cataloging; and (6) compiling union lists of microform holdings on state-wide, regional, or other bases.

In the six months since the Clearinghouse began operations, the Coordinator has responded to over 100 requests for information. These range from questions that can be answered within a single telephone conversation to queries that require the production of lengthy reports detailing data base subsets for whole categories of respondents (e.g. all RLIN users). Since the production of the latter may require more than a few days of effort, and since the the Clearinghouse is funded to operate only nine hours per week, Clearinghouse operations have, so far, significantly exceeded expectations.

Description of the Survey

The survey took its form from two earlier surveys: one conducted by ARL's Office of Management Studies (OMS) in 1979 and the other by the ARL planning consultants, Information Systems Consultants Inc. (ISCI), in 1980. It was drafted, reviewed, tested, and revised during the spring of 1982. Its questionnaire consists of three parts, the first on library microform cataloging policies, the second on holdings and bibliographic control of specific microform sets, and the third on cataloging priorities for specific sets and interest in projects for cataloging them. A copy of the survey questionnaire may be found at the end of this report before the appendices.

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

The survey was originally to be distributed only to groups of large research libraries for which mailing lists were available, i.e. members of ARL, the Canadian Association of Research Libraries (CARL), the Independent Research Libraries Association (IRLA), RLG, and the 103 libraries, next-largest after those in ARL, which are covered in the Association of College and Research Libraries (ACRL) publication: ACRL University Library Statistics (ACRL, Chicago, IL, 1980). However, the cooperation of the major bibliographic utilities -- OCLC, RLG (RLIN), WLN, and UTLAS -- permitted it to be sent to all of their participants. Because the distribution of the survey was thus extremely broad, many of its recipients were libraries that hold no microform sets. Almost 200 respondents indicated that the survey did not apply to them for this reason. A few others stated that they did not have the resources to complete the survey forms.

The following table gives totals of survey recipients by affiliation. As a courtesy, ARL sent surveys to directors of ARL and CARL member libraries even though the utilities in which they participate would also send surveys to designated staff members. This overlapping distribution was explained in cover memos and caused no known confusion among recipients.

survey questionnaire. The project has received 509 returns of Part II (containing details on holdings and bibliographic control of specific sets) and 267 returns of Part III (containing data on priorities for cataloging and on interest in projects for cooperatively cataloging specific sets). A total of 535 returns include Part I (on cataloging policies) and at least one other Part. This last total is taken as the number of substantive responses to the survey as shown below. Appendix A contains a full list of these 535 respondents by institution. Appendix B lists them by NUC Symbol.

Because the survey data base is not a fixed entity, the numbers given below are not final figures. The data base is revised and updated as new information is obtained. Libraries that wish to submit new information should contact the project office to obtain forms. The project's address and telephone number are given on the title page of this report.

Table 2 categorizes respondents by type of libraries. Not surprisingly, 72% of responding libraries are in academic institutions that offer Bachelors' or higher degrees. These libraries have always comprised the largest customer base for published microform sets and they expanded their holdings more rapidly than others during the high-acquisition period of the 1960s and 1970s.

Table 3a confirms another expected result of the survey: that large research libraries -- most of which are, of course, academic libraries -- are also likely to have extensive holdings of microform sets and therefore are likely to make the considerable effort required to complete the survey response forms.

Although Table 3a seems to suggest that a total of 288 large research libraries were sent survey questionnaires, elimination of multiple affiliations reduces the actual total to 237. The ARL and ACRL lists are mutually exclusive, but at the time the survey was distributed, 12 CARL members were also ARL members and nine others were on the ACRL list. In addition, four IRLA members and 26 RLG members are also ARL members. One RLG member is also an IRLA member. The number of responses received from these 237 libraries was 180 (a rate of return of 76%). Twenty-five of the 57 non-respondents sent replies stating either that they held no sets (most of the IRLA non-respondents are in this category) or that they did not have the resources to respond (most of the CARL non-respondents). The reply rate for large research libraries is thus 205 of 237, or 86%. Appendix C is a list of the 32 large research libraries that have, so far, returned no response forms and sent no other reply.

Large research libraries that hold sets and that have not yet replied or that have replied but have not yet completed survey response forms may still participate in the survey. Questionnaires are available from the project office.

Based on the level of membership at the time the survey was conducted, the current response rate for ARL members is 90%. The response rate for the ACRL group is 67%; for CARL members it is 77%, for IRLA it is 47%, and for RLG, 96%. OCLC participants represent 78% of respondents; UTLAS participants, 7%; RLG members and other RLIN participants, 6%; and WLN participants, 3%. Twenty-nine respondents (5%) either do not belong to a bibliographic utility or did not give information permitting their participation to be entered into the data base.

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

Responses to Part I: Microform Cataloging Policies

Summary. Part I of the survey questionnaire is framed in a multiple-choice format. Respondents are asked to put check marks showing the applicable response to each of the form's eight questions. This part of the questionnaire has elements in common with the 1979 OMS survey. Interestingly, the OMS survey, whose distribution was limited to ARL member libraries, shows that 92% of responding libraries sometimes or always create records for titles in microform sets while the Microform Project survey shows 71% of its respondents sometimes or always do so. The Microform Project's inclusion of many smaller libraries with limited cataloging departments may account for the difference in these two figures. Similarly, the OMS survey shows that 64% of respondents enter records into a machine-readable data base, while the Microform Project survey shows that 50% do so.

Questions and Response Totals. Information given by libraries in completing Part I of the Microform Project survey can be usefully summarized by tallying the responses given to each response option. These totals are given below together with the questions to which they pertain.

1. Does the library catalog some or all of the titles that are contained within large microform sets and/or provide full analytics for sets?
   Always: 45 Sometimes: 335 Never: 136

2. Do you catalog titles in sets already held and/or catalog new acquisitions?
   Sets already held: 204 New acquisitions: 340

3. Has the library in the past entered this cataloging into one or more machine-readable data bases?
   Always: 75 Sometimes: 169 Never: 222

4. Does the library continue to enter this cataloging into a machine-readable data base?
   Yes: 269

5. Into which data base(s) have you entered or do you enter microform cataloging records?
   Formerly: OCLC, 151; RLIN, 5; WLN, 3; UTLAS, 16; In-House, 26; Other, 3
   Currently: OCLC, 203; RLIN, 22; WLN, 5; UTLAS, 20; In-House, 33; Other, 10

6. If the library catalogs titles within microform sets as they are acquired, do you keep records showing what sets receive cataloging and how many titles have been cataloged? Yes: 179 No/No Response: 356

7. Does the library use catalog cards supplied by publishers when they are available?
   Always: 66 Sometimes: 235 Never: 184

8. If the library does use catalog cards supplied by publishers, are these records substantially revised before being used?
   Always: 37 Sometimes: 170 Never: 110

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

The responses to Part I of the Microform Project survey show some interesting results. The number of libraries that sometimes or always catalog titles in microform sets is high (380 respondents). Although a large number of libraries catalog sets already held and sets newly acquired, considerably more libraries catalog new acquisitions than catalog existing holdings.

119 libraries reported that they sometimes or always catalog titles in microform sets but have not in the past entered and are not currently entering records into a machine-readable data base. Of this group, 19 libraries that always catalog sets have never in the past entered records, though nine of them currently enter them. 129 libraries that sometimes catalog sets never entered records in the past, though 20 of these currently enter them. 220 libraries never in the past created machine-readable records for titles in microform sets. One always created them in the past but does not currently do so, and eight report that they sometimes in the past entered records for sets into a data base but do not now do so.

A higher proportion of libraries is shown to continue to enter records into a machine-readable data base than is shown to have produced machine-readable cataloging in the past (64% versus 46%), suggesting that the production of machine-readable cataloging for titles in microform sets is a fast-growing practice. OCLC, not surprisingly, is the dominant data base into which records have been or are being entered. As the table on the following page shows, 37% of all respondents currently enter records for titles in microform sets into OCLC. However, a higher proportion of RLIN and UTLAS participants currently enter records into their data bases than do OCLC participants into OCLC.

A total of 32 libraries reported current entry of records into more than one data base. A total of 18 reported entry into an in-house system as well as one of the bibliographic utilities. Eight reported entry into a system designated "other" as well as into a utility (most of these "other" data bases may be systems such as GEAC). Five reported entry into both OCLC and RLIN.

Table 4, Proportion of libraries that enter records into machine-readable data bases.

Category of Respondent	Data Base	Proportion of Libraries Entering Records Into a Machine-Readable Data Base: Currently	Formerly
All respondents (n=535)	Any of them	50%	46%
	OCLC	37%	28%
	RLIN	4%	1%
	UTLAS	4%	3%
	WLN	1%	1%
	In-House	3%	3%
Respondents that currently create machine-readable records (n=269)	OCLC	74%	56%
	RLIN	7%	1%
	UTLAS	7%	6%
	WLN	2%	1%
	In-House	6%	7%
OCLC participants (n=420)	OCLC	48%	36%
RLG members and RLIN participants (n=34)	RLIN	56%	12%
UTLAS participants (n=37)	UTLAS	54%	43%
WLN participants (n=15)	WLN	33%	20%

As expected, libraries are cautious in their response to cataloging provided by publishers. Thirty-four percent of respondents never use it and 44% use it with discretion. A high proportion of those that use publishers' cataloging do so only after substantial revision (65%).

Responses to Part II: Holdings and Bibliographic Control of Specific Sets

Summary. Part II of the questionnaire is a form having a grid pattern on which respondents are requested (1) to insert numeric identifiers for each microform set which they hold and (2) to respond to the following instructions insofar as they apply and the data are available.

1. Hold entire set: Put a check mark if library has all parts of set that have been published, publishing has ceased, and holdings are complete.
2. Hold approximately ___% of set: For sets that are incompletely held and not still being received: give approximate proportion of set held.

3. Still receive portions: Put a check mark if set is still being acquired on standing order or subscription (but not if library intends to acquire additional, but entirely separate parts for which different code numbers are provided).

4. Have prepared local finding tools for set: Put a check mark if library has prepared finding tools other than catalog records for the titles which the set contains.

5. Have cataloged titles in set: Put a check mark if the library has cataloged, or analyzed, all of the titles that the set contains.

6. Cataloging continues: Put a check mark if cataloging of this set is still in process.

7. Approximate % of titles cataloged: Give the approximate percentage of titles owned that have been cataloged.

8. Main source of cataloging copy: Indicate whether the main source of cataloging copy was the microform publisher ("P"), the National Union Catalog or LC catalogs ("N"), a shared-cataloging bibliographic data base ("B"), or another source ("X").

9. Cataloging code: Indicate whether the main code followed was pre-AACR2 ("P"), AACR2 ("2"), or neither of them ("X").

10. Level of cataloging: Show, broadly, whether records are full ("F"), minimal level ("M"), or brief ("B"). Full means in accordance with the library's policies for full level cataloging. Minimal level means in accordance with the national minimal level standard. Brief means neither of these.

11. Percentage entered into data base: Give the approximate percentage of titles owned for which records have been entered into an in-house machine-readable data base or a shared-cataloging data base such as OCLC, RLIN, WLN, or UTLAS.

12. Entering continues: Put a check mark if the library continues to enter records for the set into a data base.

13. Hold tapes locally: Put a check mark if library has local holdings of machine-readable records for the set.

14. Specify data bases: Indicate the data base(s) into which records for the set have been entered: "O" for OCLC, "R" for RLIN, "W" for WLN, "U" for UTLAS, "I" for in-house, and "X" for other.

Responses on Non-Machine-Readable Cataloging. The following tables summarize data provided by libraries in response to the 14 categories on Part II's response form. In the first table, the total given for each response is the number of instances that the response was given by a library. In addition to this total, the second table provides totals by set and by library. Where libraries could not supply data, they either left the response block blank or put a question mark, and the totals are thus indicative but not absolute numbers.

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

The total number of holdings reported by respondents is 11,289. The largest number of sets held by a single library is 164. Nine libraries reported holdings greater than 100 sets, and the average number of sets held is 22.

A total of 809 different sets were identified, 448 of them from a listing supplied with the questionnaire and 361 added to the listing by respondents. No holdings were reported for 35 of the 483 sets in the listing that accompanies the questionnaire. Appendix D is a list of sets for which holdings were reported. Appendix E contains sets for which no holdings were reported.

Table 5 shows that 13% of holdings have been given some form of local finding tool and 24% have been completely cataloged in some form. The source used for most cataloging is shown to be publisher-supplied copy (37% of holdings for which data on cataloging source was supplied).

A high proportion of cataloged holdings have been given full cataloging (2,188 or 72% of the 3,033 for which data on level of cataloging has been given). In contrast, 18% of this group received brief cataloging and 10% received minimal-level cataloging.

Responses on Machine-Readable Cataloging. The most valuable responses to Part II of the survey concern machine-readable cataloging that has been provided for titles within sets. The table on the following page summarizes responses on this topic. Note that at least some machine-readable cataloging has been created for a fairly high proportion of sets (40%) and that the majority of this cataloging is available on OCLC (71%).

In 191 instances, libraries have entered records for a set into two data bases. In some cases specific titles have been cataloged on both data bases; more commonly, some titles have been cataloged on the first and some on the second. The most frequent combination of data bases is OCLC and in-house (15 instances), followed by RLIN and in-house (10 instances).

Fifty-eight percent of the 321 sets that have been given any machine-readable cataloging are reported to have been completely cataloged in machine-readable form. The cataloging of 55% is reported to be in process. Although these proportions are surprisingly high, they do not reflect the true volume of completed and in-process machine-readable cataloging since a number of libraries did not know whether or not cataloging was complete at time of reporting and thus left these items blank or inserted question marks in them.

The sum of the two percentages is greater than 100 mainly as a result of the entering of records for a given set into two or more different data bases, but also because libraries reported the copy cataloging of sets as well as original cataloging of them, because libraries sometimes prefer newly created records of their own making to those already available on a shared cataloging data base, and presumably also because there is some degree of unintentional duplication of cataloging effort.

Table 6 shows that 46% of the 509 libraries returning Part II of the survey have created at least some machine-readable records and that 73% of libraries that created any machine-readable records have done so on OCLC. Fifty-two percent of libraries that have created any machine-readable records have completely cataloged at least one set, and 31% of the libraries in this group continue to enter records into a data base.

Data given in response to Part II is not entirely consistent with responses to Part I. For example, Part II shows that 269 libraries currently enter records into a data base, while only 235 libraries reporting entry of records for specific sets in Part II. Part I shows current entry of records into OCLC by 200 libraries, while only 172 libraries report entering records for specific sets into OCLC.

These discrepancies are partly explained by the fact that 26 libraries returned Part I of the questionnaire, but not Part II. They are also explained by the imperfect administrative records with which respondents had to work in many cases. Apparently, some respondents to Part I believed their libraries to be creating machine-readable records for titles in microform sets, but the respondent to Part II (not necessarily the same person) could not identify the set being given this cataloging.

Table 6, Summary of Machine-Readable Cataloging of Microform Sets from Part II of the Survey

	Holdings	Sets	Libraries
Machine-readable records have been created (any at all)	942	321	235
Machine-readable records have been entered into:
OCLC	569	227	172
an in-house system	163	81	30
UTLAS	72	54	18
RLIN	71	54	16
WLN	10	10	3
SOLINET	6	6	1
other	26	24	7
unknown	61	56	34
Entering of machine-readable records for set is complete	341	185	123
Entering of machine-readable records for set continues	363	177	144
Tapes for machine-readable cataloging are held locally	275	157	72

Although Table 6 seems to show that the cataloging of sets in machine-readable form has been begun but abandoned before completion in 238 instances, this is not a valid conclusion from the data. The number of holdings completely cataloged and the number for which cataloging is in-process are, as suggested above, shy of the true totals for these categories as a result of respondents' uncertainties about the status of their cataloging.

Appendix F gives sets that have been or are being cataloged on one or more bibliographic utility and Appendix G lists sets cataloged on in-house systems.

Responses to Part III: Priorities for Cataloging and Interest in Cooperative Cataloging Projects

A response grid, somewhat like Part II on a smaller scale, Part III of the survey questionnaire requests respondents to identify the microform sets that the responding library considers to be most in need of cataloging. Respondents cite sets by the same numeric identifiers used on Part II and they assign a value to each set cited on a scale of one to five, five denoting highest priority and one lowest.

In addition, Part III asks respondents to indicate whether the library would be willing to participate in a cooperative project to catalog each set that is given a priority rating.

The final question on Part III concerns the "authority" of responses. Respondents are asked to indicate whether the return represents: (1) library-wide policies or plans, (2) library-wide informal goals, (3) departmental policies or informal goals, or (4) the personal view of the respondent.

Priorities for Cataloging Microform Sets. The 267 libraries that returned completed copies of Part III of the survey questionnaire gave priority ratings to 466 separate sets (a total of 1,926 holdings were rated). The number of sets receiving no priority for cataloging is 343. An investigation has not yet been made to determine which, if any, of the sets that did not receive priority for cataloging would have received priority had they not already been fully cataloged.

The highest rating total (sum of all ratings) given any set is 224. The average rating per set totals 11.8, and the median rating is 6. Some libraries gave priority ratings for large numbers of sets. One gave ratings for 114 sets. Most rated only one or two. The vast majority gave priorities only for sets already owned; a few also listed ones that were being considered for purchase.

The following table summarizes priority ratings given in response to Part III. Though not generally very meaningful, the even distribution of totals given on this table does indicate that respondents gave careful thought to the relative need for cataloging each set they listed.

Table 7, Summary of Priorities For Cataloging Microform Sets

	Holdings	Sets	Libraries
Highest priority (5)	536	202	180
Next highest (4)	374	172	134
Mid-range (3)	389	231	141
Low (2)	249	154	94
Lowest (1)	323	174	110

Interest in Cooperative Cataloging Projects. A total of 121 respondents showed a commitment to one or more cooperative cataloging projects (45% of those completing this part of the questionnaire). This group of respondents identified 227 separate sets that they are willing to catalog cooperatively. The set most often cited in returns that give cooperative cataloging data received positive responses from 24 libraries. Most sets were given positive responses by only one or two libraries. Fifty-four sets were listed for cooperative cataloging by three or more libraries.

There response data are quite surprising. Many people had thought interest in cooperative cataloging to be quite limited, involving very few libraries and few sets. Only five libraries showed interest in cooperative cataloging in the 1980 ISCI survey.

If the experience of the RLAC Microform Cataloging Task Force is indicative, the Microform Project survey data are more than wishful thinking on the part of respondents. Of the 13 libraries that are actively cataloging American Fiction under RLAC auspices, two are so committed to cooperative cataloging that they are participating despite the fact that they do not own the set.

Levels of Authority of Responses to Part III. The following table summarizes data on the authority of responses to Part III.

Table 8, Authority of Responses

	Libraries
Library-wide policies or plans	42
Library-wide informal goals	75
Dept. policies or informal goals	38
Personal view of respondent	72

This table shows that libraries' responses to questions on priorities and cooperative cataloging have a high degree of authority. Seventy-one percent of responses represent library or departmental policies or informal goals.

Although the table does not show it, the majority of those who stated they were giving their personal views are department heads, usually heads of technical services or of collection development departments.

Sets Given High Priority for Cataloging. The data in Part III of the survey data base can be used to compile a list of sets given highest priority for cataloging. An effective method for accomplishing this is to combine those sets that have been given the highest priority ratings, with those that have been rated by a significant number of libraries (regardless of the size of the rating) and those which a significant number of libraries have shown an interest in cooperative cataloging.

As a tool to assist in the development of cataloging projects, a tally was made of sets meeting any of the following criteria: (1) a total priority rating of at least 20, (2) priority ratings given by at least eight libraries, and (3) at least three libraries have shown interest in cooperative cataloging. A total of 65 sets meet this set of criteria. A listing of the 65 is given in Appendix H. Appendix I shows the sets in priority order.

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

Data in Part II of the survey data base can be used to determine which high-priority sets have not received a significant amount of cataloging on any of the major bibliographic utilities.

Lists of sets that have not received a significant amount of cataloging on OCLC, RLIN, or UTLAS are found, respectively, as Appendices J, K, and L. Only three high-priority sets are shown to have received any cataloging on WLN: HRAF Microfiles (10% cataloged in an on-going program), Microfiche of Books Listed in LAW BOOKS RECOMMENDED FOR LIBRARIES (some cataloging is shown), and State Constitutional Conventions, Commissions, and Amendments on Microfiche (a very small amount cataloged).

Libraries that wish further information on the sets listed in Appendices J, K, and L should contact the project office. These sets are clearly prime candidates for any of the following actions.

The larger sets should be considered for cooperative cataloging projects. The project office can supply the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of librarians that have shown an interest in cooperative projects for each of them. Since a number of large sets are already being cataloged by individual libraries, such stand-alone cataloging is clearly also an option. The cataloging of smaller sets can be accomplished fairly easily by individual libraries. Both large and small sets are candidates for cataloging under HEA Title II-C or other grants.

The project office can assist libraries in undertaking projects such as these by providing information on libraries that are already cataloging sets as well as on those that are interested in cataloging them. It can give guidance on techniques for establishing cooperative cataloging projects, can give support for grant applications, and can put library staff in contact with OCLC personnel so that existing and newly-created records can be coded for set-processing (or profile-matching). It can also assist by putting library staff in contact with publishers as and if necessary.

As explained above, the project office can also provide information from any of the 76 categories of data in the survey data base on any of the 809 sets for which data exist. A list of sets is found as Appendix D.

Respondents' Comments on Microform Cataloging

All three parts of the survey questionnaire contained space which libraries used to comment on their responses. In addition, a number of libraries enclosed notes and letters with their response forms.

Both general and specific comments were received. The most common type of general comment is one that states simply that the task of filling out the questionnaire was difficult but useful. Many libraries had not previously inventoried their holdings of microform sets and very few had maintained detailed records concerning the bibliographic control provided for them. The great majority of these libraries were glad to have the occasion for creating such records. Other general common comments give support to the Microform Project and offer assistance, usually through participation in cataloging projects.

Respondents in libraries that hold very few sets and that are not planning to acquire new ones sometimes inserted comments saying that the Microform Project really does not apply to them.

Almost all the comments given in response to the second part of the survey concern specific holdings. Most of them specify the parts of a set that is held where they have not been able to supply the approximate percentage as requested. Others specify the parts that have been cataloged and the machine-readable records that have been created where these data cannot be given by percentages. Respondents also used Part II comments to indicate uncertainties regarding specific responses and provide clues for correcting estimating errors they may have made. A number of them give information on planned cataloging projects and on retrospective conversion programs that are planned or underway.

Appendix M contains a sampling of general statements made in both letters and comments to the first and third parts of the survey. The collection is not intended to be representative, but rather to show some of the more interesting of those that were received.

Conclusion

The Microform Project was established to assist libraries, microform publishers and the bibliographic utilities in their efforts to achieve bibliographic access to titles in microform sets. The primary tool in providing this assistance is a Microform Cataloging Clearinghouse. The main purposes of the clearinghouse are to facilitate the cataloging of titles in microform sets and prevent duplication of effort.

The clearinghouse is based on a survey sent to participants in the four major bibliographic utilities as well as the few major libraries that do not participate in them. A total of 535 useful survey returns were received. These returns show that a large number of libraries catalog titles in microform sets and that most of them create machine-readable records for at least some of the sets they catalog. The number of cataloged sets is large and appears to be growing quickly. Although many sets have nonetheless not yet received cataloging, there is reason to believe that most, perhaps all of them will be cataloged during the next few years.

The clearinghouse can help libraries by providing information on records that are already available for titles in sets that they wish to catalog; it can assist them in locating sets that have been coded for set processing, or profile matching; and it can provide information useful in preparing cataloging grant applications.

Microform Sets in U.S. and Canadian Libraries

Your help is needed in extending the clearinghouse data base: please give the project office information to update the survey responses sent in 1982. If your library has begun cataloging one or more microform sets in the past 12 to 18 months, insofar as you can, give the following data:

> Set title and publisher; whether you hold the entire set, hold part and are not still receiving, or hold part and still receive segments; whether you have prepared any finding tools apart from cataloging records for titles in the set; whether you have cataloged all the titles in the set or only a portion of the titles (give percentage if you can); whether cataloging continues. Give the main source of copy, the main cataloging code observed, and the level of cataloging; state whether any records for titles in the set have been entered into a machine-readable data base and, if so, approximately what percentage; indicate whether entering of records continues; specify the data base (or data bases) into which records have been entered.

In addition, if your library has completed cataloging a set in the past 12 to 18 months, please send set title, publisher, and four-digit code (if known) to the project office. Finally, if your library has not yet sent any survey data, the project coordinator will be glad to supply a complete set of forms. Please call or write.

Libraries Represented in the Clearinghouse Data Base

The libraries in this list all responded to Part I and at least one other Part of the Microform Project Survey.

The list is in alphabetical order by institution and library. Although most entries are shown as given on survey response forms, some have been revised so that libraries which have the same institutional affiliation (e.g. the University of California) are grouped together.

Certain libraries, such as state and public libraries, are institutions in their own right, of course. These are identified simply by institution name. All others, the majority of respondents, are connected with academic institutions or other parent organizations. These are identified first by institution, then by library name. Where respondents did not give a distinctive name, the word "library" usually, but not always, appears.

Not all institutions and institution/library combinations are distinctive or fully recognizable. No cross-references are included in this list. However NUC symbols are provided for each entry (in parentheses) as an aid to recognition. In addition, since NUC symbols are for the most part assigned in accordance with a logical, geographical scheme, they can be used as a kind of index. For this reason an NUC symbol list of respondents is given as Appendix B.

Note that the Library of Congress publication Symbols of American Libraries contains an index, and can thus be used as a guide to this appendix.

Appendix B

NUC Symbol List for Libraries that Responded to Part I and at Least One Other Part of the Survey Questionnaire

The list was drawn from the same data base as that in Appendix A and the introductory comments given there regarding institutions and libraries apply here as well. Because the list is presented in order by NUC symbol, there is no major advantage in regularizing insitution and library names. For that reason they appear in the list with abbreviations and inconsistent punctuation as the appear in the clearinghouse data base.

The Library of Congress publication Symbols of American Libraries gives a listing of libraries by NUC symbol and thus may be used as a source of further information on libraries listed here.

Appendix D

Microform Sets Covered in the Clearinghouse Data Base

This list includes all sets listed by libraries in response to Part II of the Microform Project Survey. Although the main focus of the Microform Project is upon collections of books and serials, some publishers supplied the names other types of microform collections as well, and, as a courtesy, these were added to the list of sets that accompanied the survey questionnaire.

In response to the survey, libraries contributed data on these and other microform collections containing materials other than books and serials as well. Since it would otherwise be lost, this information was added to the data base, and for this reason, this list includes entries for a number of series titles as well as oral history, dissertation, and manuscript collections.

The list is in alphabetical order. Upper-case words (such as the initialism ERIC) appear before words in upper- and lower-case letters. The form of title used is derived from three sources: research done by Suzanne Cates Dodson for the second edition of her book, Microform Research Collections: A Guide (1983, Meckler Publishing, Westport, CT); 2) additions and corrections made by microform publishers; and 3) further additions provided by responding libraries.

Unfortunately, sets are often referred to by numerous conventional and short-hand titles. Some sets are cited one way by their publishers and other ways by holding libraries. As Mrs. Dodson points out in the first edition of the Guide, establishing a formal title for a set can be difficult work. Libraries frequently use titles that vary from the forms preferred by publishers. Publishers sometimes change titles for any of a number of marketing purposes, and some publishers include the same works in two or more different sets. These and other idiosyncrasies of microform publishing and of identification of microforms in libraries make the task of establishing formal titles nearly impossible. Mrs. Dodson attempts to alleviate the problem by providing a wealth of information on each set covered in the Guide and by indexing each of them as well.

As an aid to identifying entries, this list contains the name of a publisher, in abbreviated form. The publisher cited is not necessarily the original nor the current supplier of the set. It is simply the organization specified in the source used for the title (the Dodson Guide, the publisher itself, or a holding library). In a few cases where more than one publisher is known, more than one publisher is given. The abbreviations are not intended to be cryptic. Nonetheless, a brief cross-reference list is given at the close of the list.

Appendix D - Sets in the Clearinghouse Data Base

The four-digit number that follows publisher abbreviations is the code used in identifying the set in the Clearinghouse data base. A number of cross-references appear in the list. These cite entries by number rather than titles. Insofar as possible, sets were numbered in alphabetical order. Certain exceptions had to be made where more sets were reported in a given alphabetic location than there were numbers available to identify. In other cases the title of a set was changed after numbering (e.g. ERIC, which was first alphabetized under "United States" and therefore bears the number 3490). Thus in most cases, though not all, the numbers can be used to find sets in the list. A list of sets in numeric order is available from the Project office on request.

Microform Sets That Are Not Represented in the Clearinghouse Data Base

Although these 35 sets were included in the list of sets that accompanied the survey questionnaire, no respondents reported holding them and data for them are consequently not available in the clearinghouse data base. The absense of reports for them does not necessarily mean that few, if any, U.S. or Canadian libraries now hold them. Some sets were newly published at the time the survey was conducted and for that reason had not found their way into libraries. Others may be known in libraries by names so different from those used by their publishers that the connection between the publisher-name and the library-name cannot be made. (These, of course, will be found in the data base under the names that the reporting libraries used in citing them.)

The introduction to Appendix D given information on the form of title used here. Like the list given in Appendix D, this list includes abbreviated publisher names (in parentheses) and the four-digit numbers that are used to identify sets in the survey data base.

Appendix F

Microform Sets Cataloged on One or More Bibliographic Utilities

This list shows microform sets for which cataloging is available on one or more of the North American bibliographic utilities. It includes sets that have been fully cataloged as well as ones that are in the process of being cataloged. Titles are listed alphabetically, capital letters before lower-case ones. (Thus JSAJ appears before Jeffersonian Americana.)

Like Appendixes D and E, the list gives set titles, publishers, and four-digit numbers. In addition, it has notations to show whether cataloging is complete or in process and it gives the initial letter of the utility (or utilities) on which the cataloging may be found.

Complete cataloging is indicated by the notation "100%". The phrase "In Progress" is used in two cases where cataloging is in progress: (1) where sets are being acquired on subscription or standing order and (2) where they are held in complete form, but are being cataloged retrospectively.

The letter identifying the utility is given after a diagonal slash. "O" stands for OCLC; "R" for RLIN; "U" for UTLAS; and "W" for WLN. Cataloging on in-house systems is identified only where reports show no entry of records into a bibliographic utility.

Appendix J

Highly-Ranked Sets For Which Machine-Readable Cataloging Is Unavailable or Very Incomplete on OCLC

Data from Microform Project survey returns shows that, of the 85 sets that were given highest priority for cataloging, 50% have either been fully cataloged or are in the process of being cataloged on OCLC. The 43 remaining sets are listed below. The list includes all sets for which no machine-readable cataloging is shown to have been input to OCLC, along with sets for which little OCLC cataloging is shown and sets for which data is not given on the amount of OCLC cataloging that has been created. It is annotated to show where machine-readable records have been created on data bases other than OCLC.

The list is in alphabetical order by title. As is the case with other alphabetical lists in this report, capital letters appear before lower-case ones (thus ASI appears before American Fiction). The titles used are ones supplied by publishers. See the second edition of Suzanne Dodson's Microform Research Collections: a Guide (Meckler Publishing Westport, CT, 1983) for alternate titles and information regarding dates of publication and set contents. An abbreviation of publisher name follows each set title; the four-digit code which identifies the set follows that.

Note that some entries on the list are already fully indexed by the publisher (e.g. ERIC, the CIS and ASI Microfiche Libraries and the CIS U.S. Serial Set). The priority given the cataloging of these sets suggests an indexing function for cataloging that deserves further examination, though it is outside the scope of this report. Other entries are works in series rather than collections of books and serials (e.g. Hansard's Parliamentary Debates and the House of Commons Sessional Papers). The priority given the cataloging of these series may indicate a perception that they require detailed analyzing.

Significantly, as a whole, indexed sets and series entries rank rather low in the listing. The CIS Microfiche Library ranks 72nd out of 85, ASI 66th. Readex's Serial Set collection ranks 65th, while that of CIS ranks 73rd. Hansard's and the Commons Sessional Papers rank 70th and 81st respectively. ERIC is an exception: this heavily-used set was given high priority for cataloging. It ranks 19 in the list of 85.

Highly-Ranked Sets For Which Machine-Readable
Cataloging Is Unavailable or Very Incomplete on OCLC

ASI Microfiche Library (American Statistics Index/Microfiche Library) (CIS) - 0500
Two libraries are cataloging in machine-readable form; one on an in-house system, the other on a system denoted as "other".

Appendix J - Highly-Ranked Sets Not Cataloged on OCLC

American Fiction 1774-1900: Lyle H. Wright (Lost Cause) 0160
Three libraries report the production of small numbers of records on OCLC, in one case, cataloging is reporting as continuing, but the report may be in error. Two libraries report creating records on in-house systems.

Anti-Slavery Propaganda in the Oberlin College Library (Lost Cause) - 0380
Three libraries report that they have produced machine-readable cataloging on in-house data bases. One library is shown to have produced OCLC cataloging, but the amount is not shown.

Black Culture Collection (B & H) - 0540
One library reports creating records on OCLC, but the report may be in error.

British and Continental Rhetoric and Elocution (UMI) - 0610
One library reports creating records on OCLC, but the report may be in error.

CIS Microfiche Library (CIS) - 0970
Three libraries report the cataloging of small segments of this collection on OCLC.

CIS U.S. Serial Set on Microfiche (CIS) - 0980
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

City Directories of the United States (RP) - 0990
One library has cataloged 1% on an in-house system. Two libraries have created undetermined amounts of machine-readable records; one on an unknown data base, the other on OCLC.

College Catalog Collection, Microfiche (Nat Micro Lib) - 1000
There are no reports of machine-readable cataloging for this set.

Confederate Imprints (RP) - 1040
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

Curriculum Development Library (Fearon Pitman) - 1150
There are no reports of machine-readable cataloging for this set.

ERIC. Educational Resource Information Center Reports (ERIC) - 3490
There is one report of entry of a small number of records for this set into OCLC.

Early American Imprints: First Series (Evans) 1639-1800 (Readex) - 1231
One library has cataloged an undetermined amount on RLIN. In addition, it should be noted that the American Antiquarian Society North American Imprints Project is cataloging the titles which are included in this set. Microprint card numbers are being included in cataloging records. AAS is creating the records on an in-house system, but will enter all of them into RLIN and is willing to have them tape-loaded into OCLC if funds to reimburse costs are obtained. [For greatest usefulness the records should be upgraded to include proper 007 and 533 notes and should be tagged for set processing before being loaded into OCLC.]

Early American Imprints: Second Series (Shaw-Shoemaker) 1801-1819 (Readex) - 1232
There are no reports of OCLC cataloging for this set.

Appendix J - Highly-Ranked Sets Not Cataloged on OCLC

Early English Books: Series I, 1475-1640 (Pollard and Redgrave) (UMI) - 1281
Three libraries have produced machine-readable records; one has input 20% into RLIN, one has input an indeterminate amount into an in-house system, and one has input an indeterminate amount into OCLC.

Early English Books: Series II, 1641-1700 (Wing) (UMI) - 1282
One library has input records for an indeterminate percentage of the set into OCLC.

Early English Text Society Publications. Original and Extra Series (Microcard) - 1303
One library has cataloged this set on UTLAS; another has produced a small quantity of OCLC records.

The Fowler Collection of Early Architectural Books (RP) - 1530
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

French Books before 1601 (General) - 1540
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

French Political Pamphlets from 1560 to 1653 (B & H) - 1590
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

German Baroque Literature: Harold Jantz Collection (RP) - 1621
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

German Baroque Literature: Yale Collection (RP) - 1622
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

German Books before 1601 (General) - 1630
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

Goldsmiths'-Kress Library of Economic Literature. Segment I: Printed Books Through 1800 (RP) - 1670

Goldsmiths'-Kress Library of Economic Literature. Segment II: 1801-1850 (RP) - 1671
No machine-readable records were reported for either of these sets. Note: there is a third part to the set which did not meet criteria for inclusion in the list of highest-priority sets.

Great Britain. Parliament. Hansard's Parliamentary Debates, Lords and Commons, 1066 to present (Readex) - 1694
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Sessional Papers. 1731 to present (Readex) - 1696
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

History of Photography (RP) - 1810
Four libraries have created machine-readable records; two on UTLAS, one on RLIN, and one (an indeterminate amount) on OCLC.

History of Women (RP) - 1830
Five libraries have created machine-readable records; two on in-house systems, one on RLIN, and two have create indeterminate amounts of records both in-house and on OCLC.

Italian Books before 1601 (General) - 1991
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

Pamphlets in American History (MCA) - 2550
There is one report of OCLC cataloging for this set: records for the portion covering the section on women have been entered into that data base.

Appendix J - Highly-Ranked Sets Not Cataloged on OCLC

Peel Bibliography on Microfiche (Bibliography of the Prairie Provinces to 1953) (Nat Lib Canada) - 2560
This set contains items cited in the bibliography and is not itself a bibliography. One library has created brief records for the entire set on an in-house system and two libraries have created indeterminate amounts of records; one on UTLAS and the other one on an in-house system.

The Plains and the Rockies (Lost Cause) - 2600
Three libraries have produced machine-readable records; one has produced an indeterminate amount of cataloging on OCLC, one a small amount on an unspecified system and one a small amount on an in-house system.

Russian Historical Sources: First Series (Readex) - 2991
One library has cataloged an indeterminate amount on OCLC.

Russian Historical Sources: Second Series (Readex) - 2992
Five libraries have produced machine-readable cataloging; two of them indeterminate amounts in-house, one of them an indeterminate amount on an unspecified system, and one an indeterminate amount on OCLC.

Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture: A Selection from the Schomburg Center: I (Kraus) - 3040
One library has produced a small amount of machine-readable cataloging on an unspecified system.

Spanish Drama of the Golden Age: The Comedia Collection of the U of Pennsylvania Libraries (RP) - 3210
One library has cataloged about half this set on OCLC, but cataloging is not shown to be continuing.

State Censuses (Kraus) - 3230
One library has cataloged an indeterminate amount on OCLC.

The Thomason Tracts: The Pamphlets, Books, Newspapers, and MSS Collected by George Thomason, 1640-1661 (UMI) - 3315
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

United States Serial Set (1817 to Present) and American State Papers (1789-1838) (Readex) - 3545
One library has cataloged approximately 60% of this set on a system denoted "other".

William S. Gray Research Collection in Reading (A T Burrows Ins) - 3750
Three libraries have created OCLC records, two have cataloged indeterminate amounts and one reports cataloging 70% but gives little other data.

Women and Health/Mental Health (Women's Hist RC) - 3810
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

Women and Law (Women's Hist RC) - 3820
No machine-readable records were reported for this set.

Appendix M

Sample Comments Given on or with Survey Returns

This appendix contains a sampling of general statements made both in letters and as comments in connection with the Microform Project Survey. The collection includes both typical and unusual comments, and, as a whole, is not meant to be representative of all comments received.

Our first efforts at surveying our holdings were so discouraging that we decided not to respond at all. Looking at your follow-up letter, I thought I would at least send along the results of our census together with as much information about cataloging as I could easily gather.

Just finding out what we have has taken a paraprofessional three days and even so this is certainly not a complete list. We treat most microform sets as publishers' series; when we catalog the titles separately we do not make an added entry for the title of the set. Fortunately some of my colleagues have long memories or their own systems of record keeping.

Despite some misgivings about the questionnaire, there was a good deal of interest here in the project and I would certainly like to be placed on the project mailing list. Because of a large monograph backlog and a retrospective conversion project, I doubt that we will be in a position to participate in any shared cataloging project at any time in the next year or two, but I certainly hope that will not be the case for too long.

Frankly, we found the questionnaire more in the nature of a research project that a survey. To answer many of the items on the response form would have required considerable digging for information.

Many of the purchases were made years ago and there is no record of whether we purchased the entire set or if the definition of an entire set is changed over the years.

I did not return Part III of the questionnaire. We could not establish priorities for the various titles. Philosophically I remain committed to cooperative cataloging for microforms. For several years I endeavored to interest the state universities in [state] to embark on such a project. There was little interest. Now the cost of such a project in FTU and catalog card/tape record changes make such a project unachievable. The thrust of libraries' efforts should be directed to the producers of microforms to encourage them to make available quality machine readable cataloging.

Appendix M - Sample Comments

The survey sheets which we received have led to discussion on the future of microforms at [library] which has been instructive and welcome.

The exercise of completing the questionnaire was helpful to me in reviewing our cataloging policies and the state of bibliographical control of our holdings in microform.

Our director is well aware that this [i.e. microform cataloging] should be an area of greater concern. We have much room for improvement in our handling of non-print collections. In fact, the director is using the survey to initiate discussions with various groups and committees within the library on establishing reasonable policies and procedures for non-print materials.

I want to affirm our interest and willingness to be involved in future developments but would find it impossible to participate while our staffing shrinks over the next three years.

Since we fully recognize the importance of the survey, I am most reluctant to say outright that we cannot manage Part II, but we are very short in staff in this area ....

I have no doubts that even with all the time I spent ferreting out these titles there are still more remaining in hiding under who-knows-what headings! Although I have grumbled a lot while working on the survey it certainly has been a wonderful tool in acquainting me with our collection.

We are both interested and committed to working with a cooperative microform cataloging project using the OCLC data base.

Thank you for the opportunity to participate in this project; the process was very useful to us.

It is an interesting project and it is gratifying to see some positive efforts toward resource and information sharing. We would very much appreciate receiving copies of the summary reports which we could use in our instructional program.

We look forward to the project report, hoping that it and the interest and effort which may be garnered will put the research library world on a new plane with regard to eventual control of commercially-produced microform sets.

As a small library in a bibliographic utility, the likelihood of acquiring microform sets would be increased if bibliographic information were more readily available on-line.

Appendix M - Sample Comments

It is important that the level of cataloging is "full" in accordance with AACR2 if the project is to elicit a wide participation. It is also crucial to enter the data into a data base such as OCLC especially because many large academic libraries are planning for on-line catalogs in the next two to three years.

We rely on published guides, publishers' reel lists, brochures, etc. as much as possible. Analytic cataloging is supplied only if available for purchase -- past practice. Current practice -- recently purchased analytic cards are not being processed because of the need for authority work and/or tagging for data base entry and lack of space in public card catalog. All analytic cards which had been in the shelf list have been removed due to lack of cabinet space.

Our records are very poor. Some collections are not cataloged at all -- the staff just know they exist. Some collections only have analytics filed, but may not have analytics for all of a collection. It is difficult to track down what we have done. Just identifying the titles we own has been a major accomplishment. Because [library] will benefit greatly from the success of the project, we may be willing to reconsider cooperation on a title by title basis for new titles. Please keep us informed.

Quite frankly I have too many other things to think about getting controlled before we can think about some of our microform sets.

Shared cataloging from LC and OCLC member institution bibliographic records is an important factor in formulating our cataloging policies and priorities. And, as we rely upon access to records for our use, we consider our participation important also. Microform sets are not at the top of our list of cataloging priorities to be sure, but our participation in shared cataloging of this material is definitely an on-going activity. Therefore, the prospect of participation in a cooperative cataloging project is an interesting consideration. Please accept this as an indication of our willingness to consider a formal arrangement for cooperative cataloging of microform set(s), dependent upon the provisions of such an arrangement, of course, and the impact to our cataloging priorities and production.

Association of Research Libraries
MICROFORM PROJECT, 503 11th Street, S.E., Washington, D.C. 20003 (202) 544-0291

JEFFREY HEYNEN
Project Coordinator

April 30, 1982

Dear Librarian:

The enclosed survey initiates a major program of the Association of Research Libraries Microform Project. It is being sent to libraries in the United States and Canada to obtain detailed information regarding bibliographic control of microform sets. The survey's three-part questionnaire asks what sets are held, whether sets held have been cataloged and if so how, and what priority should be given for future cataloging. The forms also have questions on libraries' overall cataloging policies with regard to microforms and request that respondents indicate what sets they would be willing to catalog partially if other libraries were to catalog remaining portions and whether they would be willing to catalog certain sets were other libraries to catalog certain others.

Survey results will be used to help set priorities for cataloging, alert libraries to needless duplication of effort where it exists, help distribute cataloging work so that all libraries have opportunities to participate and no libraries are unfairly burdened, provide information on partial cataloging that has already been done, assist in putting together groups for shared cataloging programs, give data for use of publishers to promote cataloging of sets at source, provide information for grant applications by which libraries may obtain funds for cataloging projects, and coordinate efforts to establish cooperation between the bibliographic utilities for exchange of cataloging records.

Using the results, the Microform Project will set up an information clearinghouse to respond to specific questions on existing holdings and catalog records, and on plans for future work. It will also produce summary reports on sets that have been, are being, and will be cataloged and it will provide data for assessing the need for further programs to coordinate bibliographic control activities. All respondents will receive copies of the summary reports. They may also call or write the Microform Project office for responses to questions on specific information that the database contains.

The three parts of the questionnaire are as follow: (1) questions on microform cataloging policies, (2) questions on holdings and the cataloging that has been given specific sets, and (3) questions on priorities for future cataloging and interest in participation in cooperative cataloging projects. Only one copy of the first part should be needed. Please make additional copies of the others if not enough of them have been provided.

The survey greatly extends and brings up to date a pair of surveys that were conducted for ARL by Information Systems Consultants Inc. in 1980. You may find that you have photocopies of previous responses which may be used in completing the enclosed forms.

Incidentally, a number of those who responded to the ISCI survey reported that the forms served a useful internal record-keeping function. You might consider their value as administrative tools for microform collection management. The lists of titles and alternate titles of major sets may also be handy reference tools.

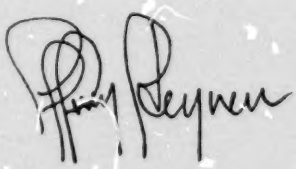
I thank you very much for taking the time to read and complete the survey. The parts may be returned to me as they are completed. Please return the last of them by June 30th.

If you need more time or have any questions about the survey, please contact me by letter or phone as promptly as you can. The response forms have been deliberately kept as brief and uncomplicated as possible. Sheets are provided for comments where modification or elaboration of responses is needed.

A final note, if any of the information on your completed survey should be considered confidential and used only without attribution or with prior permission, please use the comments sheet to specify which responses are private ones and what guidelines should be followed in using them.

The Microform Project has been set up to assist libraries, microform publishers, and the bibliographic utilities in achieving bibliographic control over microform sets. If you would like to receive more information on the project and to be placed on the project mailing list, please put a mark in the box at the end of the Part I of the questionnaire (Questions on Microform Cataloging Policy).

Sincerely,



QUESTIONNAIRE, Part I

Questions on Microform Cataloging Policies

1. Does the library catalog some or all of the titles that are contained within large microform sets and/or provide full analytics for sets?

   Always _____ Sometimes _____ Never _____

2. If the answer to question 1 is Sometimes or Always, do you: catalog sets already held and/or catalog new acquistions?

   Catalog sets already held _____
   Catalog new acquisitions _____

3. Has the library in the past entered this cataloging into one or more machine-readable databases?

   Always _____ Sometimes _____ Never _____

4. Does the library continue to enter this cataloging into a machine-readable database?

   Yes _____ No _____

5. What database(s) have you entered or do you enter microform cataloging records into? (If possible, indicate years during which entering was done.)

QUESTIONNAIRE, Part II

Questions on Holdings and Cataloging of Specific Microform Sets

In addition to this sheet, there are four items in this part of the questionnaire: a response form having a grid pattern on one side and a comments sheet overleaf together with three supporting elements.

The item on the back of this sheet is an explanation of the column headings that appear on the response form grid. It tells how the form should be filled out. Following it is the response form itself.

The remaining three items (labeled A, B, and C) give information on microform sets that is needed in completing the response form. Part II, A is a thirteen-page list of set titles. In addition to the titles themselves it has publisher notations and two key numbers: a four-digit code number and a serial number.

To save space and time and to avoid confusion, these two numbers are to be used in citing sets rather than the sets' titles. As the brief introduction to the title list states, the titles of microform sets are frequently difficult to pin down; assigning each of them a pair of unique numeric descriptors is a means of providing short, conclusive identifiers. (Using two identifiers rather than simply one provides a means of catching transpositions and other errors that might occur in filling out the form.)

Accompanying the list of titles are a brief list of publishers -- many of which have been cited only by initials or very compressed names in the title list -- and a seven-page list of cross references that provides alternate versions of microform set titles. The cross references are particularly useful for sets that do not appear to possess authoritative titles, but are variously cited by their publishers, reviewers, and users. These two items are Parts II, B and C, respectively.

The comments sheet on the back of the response form is to be used to expand upon answers given on the form and to provide information concerning major microform sets of monographs and completed serials in the library's collections whose titles are not given in the title list (and thus for which four-digit codes and serial numbers are not available).

Please photocopy the response form/comments sheet if additional copies are needed.

Response forms may be sent back as completed and need not be held until all sets in the library have been entered. Please return the last form no later than June 30th or contact Jeffrey Heynen at the address given on the form if more time is required.

QUESTIONNAIRE, Part II -- Holdings and Cataloging Response Form

Explanation of Column Headings

Hold Entire Set - Put a check mark here if library has all parts published, publishing has ceased, and holdings are complete.

Hold Approx __% of Set - For sets incompletely held and not still being received, give approximate percentage held.

Still Receive Portions - Put a check mark if set is still being acquired on standing order or subscription (but not if you intend to acquire additional, but entirely separate parts for which different code numbers are given).

Have Prepared Local Finding Tools for Set - Put a check mark if library has prepared finding tools other than catalog records for titles in the set.

Have Cataloged Titles in Set - Put a check mark if the library has cataloged, or analyzed, all of the titles that the set contains.

Cataloging Continues - Put check mark if cataloging of this set is still in process.

Approx % of Titles Cataloged - Give approximate percentage of titles owned that have been cataloged.

Main Source of Cataloging Copy - Put a "P" if publisher's copy was the main source, an "N" if NUC/LC was the main source, a "B" if records from a bibliographic database (apart from publisher's or LC copy) were the main source, and an "X" if another source was the main one.

Cataloging Code - Identify code followed, using "P" for pre-AACR2 and "2" for AACR2. Put "X" if code is neither of these.

Level of Cataloging - State, broadly, whether records are full, minimum level, or brief. Definitions: "Full" means in accordance with your library's policies for full cataloging . "Minimum level" means using the national level minimum level standard for bibliographic records. "Brief" means cataloging that is neither full nor national level minimum level. Use "F" for full, "M" for minimum level, and "B" for brief. Put a note on the comments sheet if a more specific response is desireable.

% Entered Into Database - Give approximate percentage of titles owned for which records have been entered into an in-house machine-readable database or a multi-library database such as OCLC, RLIN, WLN, or UTLAS.

Entering Continues - Put a check mark if records continue to be entered into a multi-library database on an ongoing basis. If this is part of a retrospective conversion project, please note on comments sheet.

Hold Tape(s) Locally - Put a check mark if Library holds machine-readable records locally for items entered into a multi-library database.

Specify Database(s) - State database into which records have been entered. Use "O" for OCLC, "R" for RLIN, "W" for WLN, "U" for UTLAS, "I" for in-house. Put "X" for other. Put more than one letter if more than one database has been used.

QUESTIONNAIRE, Part II, A - C

Questionnaire Part II, A, B, and C are, respectively, a List of Titles, a List of Publishers, and a List of Alternate Titles.

Because these lists are given in fuller and more useful form in Appendices D and E, they are not included here. The List of Titles that was given with Part II of the Questionnaire contained the titles of 483 sets derived from two sources: research done by Suzanne Dodson for the second edition of her Microform Research Collections: A Guide and titles solicited from Microform Publishers. The list given in Appendix D contains an additional 361 sets contributed by responding libraries. The List of Alternate Titles that was given with Part II is found in Appendix D merged with the proper titles in a single alphabetical listing. The List of Publishers is found at the end of Appendix D. Appendix E contains 35 sets which were originally given in the List of Titles that accompanied Part II but for which no libraries reported holdings.

QUESTIONNAIRE, Part III

Priority List

Please use this form to list the microform sets that your library considers to be most in need of cataloging because of their importance. Identify sets by their four-digit codes and item numbers on the back of this sheet. Please give full titles and publishers' names of sets you list that are not given on the title listing.

The form asks for preferences ranked between 1 and 5. One denotes lowest priority. Give a ranking of 5 to sets that your library considers to deserve highest priority.

Insofar as you can please also indicate whether your library is willing and able to participate in cooperative projects with other libraries to catalog these sets and use the place provided for comments to state whether you would catalog one or more sets provided one or more other libraries cataloged other sets that you would like to see cataloged.

Please return completed form by June 30th, 1982.
